September 2-7, 2008

Bowling Green High School

Introducing "The Toilet Paper", a weekly newsletter created by the students in Mrs. Atwood's Publishing Tools classes. This newsletter was created to inform students about upcoming events and activities in the community, as well as provide helpful information about issues students care about. If you would like your event, group, organization, activity, etc. included in the newsletter, please contact Mrs. Atwood.

We thought the bathroom would be the perfect place to get your attention!

Black Swamp Arts Festival

The first Black Swamp Arts Festival was held in Downtown Bowling Green in the fall of 1993. It was organized by a group of Downtown Business Owners and members of the community who had an interest in spotlighting the arts in bowling green.

Each year, there has been an increased number of members who plan and organize Festival details, an increased number of fine artists who display and sell their artwork, an increased number of performing artists who entertain with all genres of music and stage performances, and an increased number of participants, both local and from out-of-town, who come to enjoy and support the arts.

To get involved or volunteer, contact Mr. Triggs in the Art Department.

Friday Night Lights

On Friday night at 7:30p.m. the Bobcats will dominate the field! Come and cheer on your team to victory!

Aaron Mershman, the starting QB has a scholarship to Ball State. Also starting is, Corey Tyda, Dennis Cox, Ryan Ireland, and Brady Munger. With Adam

Crawford, Nick Miller, Alex Simon, and Jonathan Stoner at receiver; Cody Rife and Craig

Blaisiman at running back, we are sure to put points on the board.

Not only will we score but our defense is very strong this year. Returning are, all district safety, Zach Clifford, who led the team and the NLL in tackles in 2007. Also Cody Rife, linebacker, is clearly the best at his position. Come to the game Friday night to see us beat down Napoleon!
