"Democracy is being allowed to vote for the candidate you dislike least."

-Robert Byrne

"Isn't it a little ironic? We pick politicians by how they look on TV and Miss America on where she stands on the issues. Isn't that a little backwards?"

-Jay Leno

"The American people have now spoken, but it's going to take a little while to determine what they've said."

-Bill Clinton

TOP 5 REASONS YOUNG PEOPLE SHOULD VOTE

The youth vote is sadly underestimated by party analysts.

Why? Because the sad reality is that election year after election year the percentage of eligible youth who actually register and vote is small when compared with other demographics. This doesn't mean the youth market isn't a force, just that it isn't a main motivator in the drafting of campaign platforms and pre-election advertising.

The biggest election issues often directly effect the youth of the nation.

The war in Iraq, educational funding, employment and job training programs, and reproductive rights issues are just a few of the topics that directly effect your life RIGHT NOW.

The only way democracy works is if citizens, young and old, are active participants. A government by the people, for the people just can't work without the people.

If you don't vote you really have no right to complain about government decisions you don't like (no matter how much they actually suck).

If you don't vote you really have no right complaining about anything the government does and if your like most young people you like complaining and have it down to a fine art.

Bottom line: you should vote because you can.

Voting is a tremendous gift. Believe it or not, young people just like you in other countries actually fight and even die for this right; a right that so many youth in democratic nations take for granted.
